A Colorado Literateur.

rom the Chicago News. Colonel Ward Lamon, who an nounced that his second volume of the "Life of Lincoln" will be published very shortly, does his literary work between the hours of 2 and 5 in the morning. You never catch him at work. He seems to have a strange, superstitious dread of being seen with a pen in his hand. When he is writing and hears anybody approaching, he quickly bundles his manuscript into a drawer and pushes pen and ink out of sight. Although his appearance is so ponderous and his movements so slow as to impress one with the suspicion that he is lazy, he is as busy a man as you could find in the whole state of Colorado. He is passionately fond of reading of all kinds, his literary knowledge every school and style and his literary knowledge covers every school and style and variety of literature.

He has a wonderful retentive memory, which retains dates and names of the literature of the literature of the literature.
